

Homeschooling: to go or to abstain?

Not so long ago, translation into home schooling was carried out only for medical reasons. For school it was an additional burden, teachers are reluctant to visit the child after the school schedule. The reasons for the reluctance: remoteness of residence of the child from the school, the need for preparation and approval of the leadership of the individual school calendar-thematic plan based on the psychophysical development of the student.

Currently, homeschooling is becoming more popular even for physically healthy children. This is due to the necessary electronic resources for all school subjects, the opportunity to invite qualified Tutors for in-home lessons, implementing individual approach to the child. In addition, some children, because of their personality, unstable psyche in the the school society are exposed to ridicule and insults from other children, that depresses the nervous system, drastically reduces their communication skills not only in school but also outside of it. So it is natural that many parents think about the transition to the development of the school program at home.

Positive

First of all, it should be noted individual approach to the child taking into account his knowledge, interests, development, humanitarian, or mathematical abilities. This approach allows to reduce the time required to acquire full knowledge and to provide their qualitative consolidation. At school the teacher works with the class, where it can be 25, 30 or more students. Here to talk about the peculiarities of development of each student is not necessary.

The absence of mandatory assessment of knowledge in the home takes in children fear of parents in schooling level of knowledge, not corresponding to their expectations. For this reason reduce the chances of neurosis, the child becomes calmer. A large number of training films and programs allows him to obtain harmonious development, enhance self-esteem. If we talk about the socialization of the student, then you can get it at sports or music school in circles or sections with the same interests, and academic essay for sale just talking in the yard with their peers.

Disadvantages

If the parents or one of them, have the necessary education and experience to build the educational process at home in accordance with GEF is not difficult. Otherwise, difficulties arise with the choice of programs, forms and methods of training of the child, because each of them will have to undergo periodic examination in the school.

Note that in family education, there is no competition, the spirit of competition.

Probably, some of the parents have to leave work that can affect the family budget.

Go to family education at home or not, parents decide, after weighing all the pros and cons, keeping in mind that you can always go back to school and continue their education in the traditional form.
